Everytable

Everytable announces a Series B fundraise led by Creadev to accelerate transformation of the U.S. Food System

Everytable, a mission-driven food company that fights for food justice by making fresh, delicious food accessible and affordable for all, announced today the closing of a $16 million Series B funding round. The round was led by Creadev, an investment company with a long tradition of partnering with entrepreneurs to build world-changing companies, and also included a significant investment by Kaiser Permanente Ventures. For Kaiser Permanente Ventures, this partnership represents its first investment in a food company, signaling an evolving acceptance within the healthcare industry of the importance of nutrition in disease prevention and overall health. Other investors in the round include Candide Group, Gratitude Railroad Ventures, Desert Bloom Food Ventures, and Kimball Musk.

Everytable will use the investment to accelerate growth throughout Southern California through new grab-and-go stores, institutional food service partnerships, and the expansion of its subscription delivery service. The company is laying the foundation for expansion into its first market beyond Los Angeles and across the country.

Sam Polk, CEO and Founder of Everytable : "This new funding marks a significant milestone in our next phase of strategic growth and will help Everytable take the next step towards creating a more just and equitable society. Creadev, along with new and existing investors, shares our mission and passion to transform America's food system to ensure that everyone has access to affordable and nutritious food. Nutritious food should not be a luxury afforded to few."

Delphine Descamps, US Managing Director for Creadev : "Sam and his team are fundamentally driven by the significant impact Everytable can have in making healthy food accessible to everyone, everywhere. We are thrilled to support with other like-minded investors this ambitious vision to re-invent traditional fast food, based on a sustainable and scalable business model."

The funding comes on the heels of the company's exponential growth since its founding in 2016. What started as a revolutionary grab-and-go restaurant concept with delicious, made-from-scratch meals priced according to what a specific neighborhood can afford, Everytable is now a multi-channel food business fueled by a central kitchen that specializes in individually packaged, chef-prepared meals that start at $5.00.

Liz Rockett, Director of Kaiser Permanente Ventures, shared : "Everytable impressed us with their commitment to make healthy eating affordable, accessible and enticing, and doing it at scale. We know that 'food deserts' can render whole communities vulnerable to poor health outcomes. Organizations like Everytable are critical to the health of our communities, and we are excited to have the opportunity to help the organization grow."

Everytable's mission to make nutritious meals accessible to everyone became more important than ever at the start of the pandemic. Pivoting quickly, the company redeployed from its retail operation towards emergency food relief efforts creating a model that can change the way America addresses food insecurity in years to come. Together with major partners like The City of Los Angeles, The Department of Aging, Santa Monica College, and Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority, Everytable has provided more than 3 million healthy meals to Los Angeles' most vulnerable including housebound seniors, homeless, food insecure college students, and other marginalized individuals. In a matter of weeks, Everytable was able to drastically and successfully scale meal production from 30,000 per week to more than 180,000 meals per week, setting the stage for accelerated growth in the region and beyond.

The social enterprise also recently announced the launch of a pioneering social equity franchise program to foster economic empowerment among entrepreneurs from marginalized communities. Serving as a model approach to franchising, a system largely devoid of diversity and representation by people of color, the new program will provide critical access to capital for qualifying graduates plus in-depth, hands-on training to empower and prepare disenfranchised entrepreneurs to open Everytable restaurants in their own communities. With a combined $4.5 million in program-related investments from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, the Annenberg Foundation, The California Wellness Foundation (Cal Wellness), and Dignity Health, Everytable aims to open 50 franchised locations within the next three years in Southern California, followed by expansion into new markets.
